Bills as camp director, and Mrs. Thomas P. Powers as assistant director and business manager.

She has been a director of day camps for four years, and assistant director or program director of established camps for 13 years, as well as a member of the Girl Scout council in Johnstown, Penn. for two years. When a repairman called at the home of the Franciscan Order on Wolf road south of Mokena last Wednesday to get a power lawn mower, he was surprised to find doors open and broken. He notified Norman Strassenburg who farms the land belonging to the estate, who in turn notified Walter Rojek in Chicago, attorney for the Order.

Mr. Rojek came to Mokena at once and called the Will County sheriff who sent Roy C. Doerfler and several other deputies to the home.

They found that six sets of double door steel kitchen cabinets were taken from the kitchen wall, and several other cabinets in the process of being taken; the gasoline power lawn mower, four front door chimes and a panel of door keys were also taken.

Mr. Rojek stated entrance was gained by breaking a glass in the front door and unfastening the lock. The house is unoccupied at present.

Finger prints were taken and a large award is being offered which would lead to the finding of the burglars.

When the Order bought the property about three years ago, it was planned to convert it into a school for the training of young men for the priesthood. It is understood that the property is up for sale as the Order has moved to their headquarters at Cedar Lake, Ind.

This beautiful ultra modern home was built a few years ago by Alexander A. H. Bender of Chicago, and sold to the Polish Province of the Franciscan Order at a revealed figure of $126,500. There are 190 acres in the estate.

A flag ceremony started off each day, attendance was checked and the day's activities began. The second day the different units visited other camp sites, singing merrily as they jogged along. Tin can stoves and buddy burners were made by the older girls in preparation for the lunch of sizzling hamburgers on buns. For this day the Brownie units were the guests of the older troops—and there were no left overs!

On the third day Ring Tum Diddy was prepared by all troops, (a one-pot meal) and this was a busy cooking day preparing the vegetables, gathering wood, building of open fires and setting the tables. WATCH THOSE STEPS

We'll improve our farms step by step in the next twenty years, not in one big jump. And it's important to watch those steps.

So says Larry Simerl, economist in the Illinois College of Agriculture.

Twenty years ago we had very few row-crop tractors, grain combines, or corn pickers. The same thing was true of milking machines, electricity, and radios. And there were few basement furnaces, hot water heaters, home freezers, and no television at all.

Today many of these things are ordinary conveniences on many Illinois farms. Says Simerl:

"In 1929 we would have doubted that we could make such progress in twenty years. What will the next twenty years bring? We'll have better machinery, better farming methods, nicer homes, but what about political and economic freedom?"

"If we can prevent a disastrous drop in farm income, we've made real progress. On the other hand, our people are being grouped more and more into self-seeking conflicting sections. Relatively small labor groups may stop our great industrial processes or prevent the marketing of farm products. We've built a huge federal government that requires more money in taxes than the value of the products of all our farms."

"Whatever our situation is twenty years from now, we'll get there not in one big jump, but step by step. That's why we should watch those steps."

He Lives On

Lesson for June 26, 1949

WHAT IS JESUS, after all? A name in a book? A picture on the walls of churches? More than that! A historical character? Founder of a great religion? More than that! He is the one and only Person who can be everywhere. He would be important if he had only lived; he is far more so because he lives on. But where does he live, and how?

Dr. Foreman

Christians would often feel lonely and discouraged, if it were not for one thing. They know Jesus prays for them. In long-ago times the High Priest of Israel used to pass beyond his people's sight into the silent Holy of Holies, and when he did, the people knew that in that sacred place he was bearing on his heart the whole people, the people whom he served. So the writer to the Hebrews, in the New Testament, pictures Jesus as the perfect High Priest, who has passed beyond our sight, beyond the beautiful blue veil of heaven, into the very presence of God, where he lives, now to intercede for his people who are ever on his heart.

Jesus lives on today in the life of prayer which we believe is still his. No matter what comes to the Christian, he can remember that One is praying for him who is stronger than all the world of evil.

"Greater is he that is for us than he that is against us," said John the Apostle.

In His Book

LUKE tells us that Jesus had to show some of his friends his own picture in the Old Testament. His portrait is not very plain there, but in the New Testament it is very plain indeed. The Bible leads up to Christ, he is its crowning figure. The Bible is, so to speak, a frame for his picture. Many a person, in remote regions of the world, has become Christian just by reading about Christ in some stray copy of the New Testament. The reader begins by reading about Jesus—then the pages come alive, and he meets Jesus, face to face. Jesus lives on, wherever the Bible goes.

In His People

CHURCHES may argue among themselves about what Jesus meant by this or that. But there cannot be any argument about one thing. When Jesus left his friends behind, he gave them orders to go tell the world about him. "Make disciples of all nations. . . Ye shall be my witnesses." A shut-mouthed Christian isn't much of a Christian. A shut-mouthed church is a poor sort of church. (Is it really a church at all?) We do not believe that Jesus expected his followers all to become preachers.

Indeed, we should remember that all the first Christians were laymen. But they got results. One hundred twenty people grew to be three thousand, five thousand, in a few weeks.

What is the reason that 120 Christians today don't win 3,000 converts? One reason is that you would probably find those 120 Christians complaining that their church is "vacant," they don't have a pastor. The early Christians might have thought that very funny. How can a church be vacant with 120 people in it? Christ lives in his church.

Into All the World

CHRISTIANITY is the only religion that can stand transplanting into any climate. There is no other religion that can number its people from the Arctic to the equator, and from east to west around the world. But this is not an accident. It would not have happened by itself. Jesus himself in Galilee walked wherever he went, and in all his grown-up life he did not walk farther from his birthplace than you could drive in an afternoon.

But he walks on every shore. Where ship and camel and plane carry the missionary, there goes Christ; where the airways carry his message, there is he. Wherever Christians go, Christ goes in them and with them.

He lives everywhere today where Christians live, he walks on Christians' feet. Beside the four Gospels in print, there is the Gospel According to You. Does Jesus live in and through you?

Milton Geuther Heads Group of Ill. Farmers Studying Food Shipping

The sweet corn packing and shipping operations at Hattiesburg, Miss., were studied by a group of Illinois farmers and agricultural leaders June 13 and 14. The trip was arranged by Milton C. Geuther of Mokena, Marketing Specialist, State Dept. of Agriculture.

The Extension Service and the State Dept. of Agriculture cooperating with a group of farmers in Mississippi have set up cooperative packing sheds where the farmers bring in their sweet corn, planted in March, and harvested this month, is put on a conveyor belt and fed into a machine with two circular knives that clip the tip and butt of the ear. The corn is clipped for two reasons to make the ear more attractive and to eliminate the corn ear worm. After the corn is clipped it is moved on a conveyor belt where it is graded and sacked in mesh bags.

After it is sacked the corn is put into a tank of ice water to remove the field heat and chill it thoroughly.

Sweet corn after it is picked loses flavor in a few hours unless it is kept cool.

For ideal conditions sweet corn should be eaten within an hour after it is picked to get the best flavor. If corn is kept cool, the closed to 50 degrees the better, it will retain most of its flavor for several days.

At this packing shed the corn remained in the ice water about 12 minutes and was then loaded into refrigerator cars and snow ice was blown in the car to keep it cold until it reached Chicago on some other terminal market.

The Illinois group were interested in the possibilities of setting up a similar operation to supply local markets and to send corn south after their season is over.

The group included in addition to Geuther, T. W. May, Farm Adviser, Madison Co., Charles Glover, Farm Adviser, St. Clair Co., Prof. Ross Kelly, College of Agriculture, E. C. Secor, Supt. Division of Marketing, A. F. Stephens, Agr. agent GM&O RR., George Lively, Agricultural agent I. C. RR., Marvin Nicol, Ill. Chain Store Council, Mr. and Mrs. William Bruns, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Engelke, and Mr. and Mrs. Herman Landwehrmeier, farmers from Madison County.

Illinois produces some of the finest sweet corn and since this operation does not take a large investment this method seems to offer an opportunity to broaden the market for sweet corn growers.

The group also visited the Farmers Market at Jackson, Miss. as guests of L. I. Jones, Director of Extension. The State of Mississippi built this $1,000,000 market on a 23 acre tract in the city of Jackson. They have also built a modern poultry processing plant to furnish a market for broilers. It has a capacity of 100,000 broilers per week.

In addition to the information on the marketing of vegetables and poultry, the group enjoyed the traditional Southern hospitality extended to them.

DO-DREAMING

Makes Democracy Live

Folks everywhere build castles in the air—dream of fuller, happier lives. Americans, however, have formed the habit of making their dreams come true.

Of course, transforming a dream into reality is a tough job even in America. It often requires months and years of preparation—a lifetime of hard work. Nevertheless, even our youngsters are quick to accept the challenge.

The fleet-footed lad next door who dreams of becoming a football star is carrying the ball for his grade school team. The studious youngster who wants to be an engineer is building toy John Deere Combines for kids in the neighborhood. The master farmers of tomorrow are tending runt pigs, and feeding club calves, today!

Dreaming dreams and then working hard to make them come true is the American way. This is the formula that makes full stomachs the rule in our country . . . that makes old-world luxuries our commonplace possessions. This is the creed which makes America the land of opportunity . . . the land where democracy really lives!

ENTERTAINMENT IN BOTH THE MODERN and old-time manner is expected to attract 3,000,000 visitors to the Chicago Railroad Fair this summer. Many new exhibits in the spectacular 50-acre exposition on the lakefront afford a great variety in entertainment and educational features to Fairgoers.

A glittering new ice show and a thrilling exhibition of water sports will vie for attention throughout the summer with such historic attractions as a San Francisco cable car and the rip-roaring frontier town of "Gold Gulch," where a "gambling den," an assay office, old-time bank, barber shop, printing office for the town's newspaper, a courthouse, jail and leather emporium will all be open for business as in the Gold Rush days.

New scenes have been added to the popular "Wheels a-Rolling" pageant, including a "Buffalo Bill" circus parade, led by the famous ringmaster astride his white horse, and a scene featuring the bridal coach which was built in London 111 years ago and brought to Nova Scotia on the same ship with the new governor general of Canada and was used to carry his bride and himself from the seaport to their new home 25 miles away.

GIRL SCOUT DAY CAMP—

were seated grace was sung and it didn't take long for the food to disappear.

After lunch was over all troops took a rest period. During this time cloud formations were watched, appropriate nature stories were read or poems recited. Some just crawled over on their blankets and closed their eyes.

The balance of the week the troops went on hikes, nature sprints, spatter printing, lashing, making plaster leaf molds, putting on skits of all sorts, some of the paper bag-type, some dress up affairs; leather craft, coin purses being made, some troops doing stick cookery, and still others making twig trails. Cigar box garden projects were in the making, and sketching was done and twig frames lashed together were made for them. Several fire drills were held, and in each case several minutes were cut off the time in reaching the supposed fire scene than previous drills.

A social hour was enjoyed Friday afternoon after lunch with each unit putting on a skit pertaining to or built around its wild flower name.

SHORT STORY
Something of Value
By ANNA E. WILSON

THE PORCH was broad and sunny, and Elsie placed the big chair where Dad could see the people passing and look across into Mr. Barnes grocery store.

"You see, Dad," she said cheerfully, "you'll be happy here in the sunlight, and you can watch what goes on over there in the store—it'll be no time at all until you forget about the shop—Goodness knows, a man who's worked until he's sixty-five years old has earned a rest."

Dad sank back in the chair and sighed wistfully. "I know, Elsie, and the company was real nice. Mr. Twilinger presented me with a watch, and said they were real sorry about my eyes, and hated to let me go. Watch making is such fine work and," Dad finished carefully, "there was no other place open in the shop where they could work me in. Mr. Twilinger explained about it all before I came away."

"Yes," Dad tried to settle himself uneasily, "but sitting here isn't going to help pay for this house, and I did hope to see you settled in a home of your own before I died."

He was glad when Mrs. Frisby stopped to talk. She was gossipy and friendly and liked a chat.

"Glad to see you taking a rest at last, Dad. Goodness knows, it was time. I see you've been looking at the sketch for the new Memorial. Isn't it wonderful that a great artist like Mr. Bonelli's been engaged for the job. They say he's been asking for medals to copy on the figures of the war veterans and I'm hurrying right down with this one of Willie's."

Dad stared at the sketch of the Memorial, thinking of what Mrs. Frisby had said. Something of value. Dad went over all his meager possessions and they weren't much. Just his clothes, neat and clean, the watch Mr. Twilinger had given him and that old coin.

Dad was confused by the noise and bustle when he entered Mr. Bonelli's studio, but Mr. Bonelli smiled at Dad and took him into a little office in the rear.

"It's about a coin," said he humbly, and took out his lucky piece.

"Where did you get it, and why do you want to sell it, Dad?"

It was easy to talk to Mr. Bonelli, and Dad explained about his home and Elsie.

THE ARTIST sighed — "It might have been valuable once, but it's too defaced now for restoration—I'm sorry," he looked as if he really was." I wish I could tell you that it's worth something but I'm afraid it's not."

Dad, sitting on the porch chair—tried to interest himself in the paper.

Dad thanked him, but as he got up to go, Mr. Bonelli spoke.

"I have a friend coming tomorrow and if you drop in you can talk it over with him."

All afternoon Dad polished the coin and when he went down to the studio in the morning the metal in the coin shone.

Mr. Bonelli was talking to another man, when he saw Dad he beckoned him in. Dad took out the coin and the stranger glanced at it, but he was really looking at Dad.

Dad in his neat worn clothes, was worth looking at. He had lived a good life and all this good living showed in his wrinkled face and clean blue eyes. Mr. Bonelli's own eyes twinkled.

"We find you have something of value, Dad, after all," he said softly.

"The coin was worthless," he continued. "We want to use you as a model for one of the figures on our Memorial. We want to employ you in the studio to keep track of valuable loans to us. Mr. Twilinger says we couldn't get a better man. The pay is good, well over five hundred dollars for the year's work," he said gently. "You see, Dad, the thing you have of value is yourself. You've been a good citizen and it shines right in your face."
